Synopsis

Nomad's Crib - poems and fictions portrays the world as it is from the view point of a nomad. The world can be a very dark place and time to time it has the capability to drag you down to the depths of hell. In life there is no one to help you, all you have left is your lonely self to drag you back to reality. When you are confused about your purpose in this world, you feel like the problem. But when you are connected to your path of destiny, you suddenly feel like the solution. In "Nomad's Crib" the writer plunged into deep dark void space within himself, tries to seek for the answer to his problem - confusion and uncertainty of life. And within his own space of surrealist agony, he discovers the most brutal truth about life, "Life is a soup of bad meat and rotten vegetables, you can either eat it or starve to death. Choice is yours to make".
